ÎN ROMÂNIA
PROCESUL SOCIETĂȚII TRAMVAIELOR

Abstract: The birth of laws' jurisdictional control in Romania is nothing but a certification of what it was already proved in 1803 in the United States, namely that this control has a political determination. Convinced that this right of law-making process provides an unlimited power, the Parliament came up against the resistance of a judge who regarded any overlooking of constitutional stipulations as an abuse which should be removed. As it follows, we will concentrate on the trial that gave a Romanian judge the opportunity to proclaim his right of controlling the legislative power.*
