ABSTRACT: *The possibility of an arbitral tribunal consisting of a legal person may be an element of novelty from the perspective of the domestic law regulating arbitration, but it is not unusual in international arbitration. This article seeks to address the advantages and disadvantages of the legal person arbitrator and to identify the main issues that need to be dealt with in order to analyze the reliability of such a tribunal in national law, in the event that from a lege ferendastand point, we accept the hypothesis that an arbitral tribunal can function with a legal person being one of the arbitrators appointed.*

KEYWORDS: arbitral tribunal; moral person arbitrator; international arbitration.

JEL Code: K4
